Web Development

On the web, as in so much in life, first impressions are crucial. An attractive, professional design, in keeping with the site's message and audience, is vital. It not only has a significant effect on the site's impact on its visitors, but also on how pleasant it is to use, how easy it is for them to find their way around, and how well it works across different computer systems and browsers.

ComteqUSA web design covers graphic design, user interface development, back-end databases and applications, plus technical implementation. Page design and style can be developed from scratch, or coordinated with established corporate identity guidelines. We are experienced at adapting material originally designed for printed media for the web and are happy to work with client's existing designers.
